#1, Kim	Option 1	The photos are hard to read. Try enlarging them a bit and experimenting with the placement.
#1, Kim	Option 2	I would reduce the field under the title to create symmetry. This will give more space for the subtitle. It is better to replace the small text with some bright thesis. This will make it possible to increase the font and make it more readable in the preview.

#2, Lin	Option 1	I like word "bible" in title and images show real secrets of beauty
#2, Lin	Option 2	The cover doesn't look as miracle.
#3, Anz	Option 1	This cover, in terms of color scheme and layout, reminds me more of a romance novel.
#3, Anz	Option 2	This cover, in terms of color palette and design, feels much more connected to nature, health, and the healing properties of the oil. I might consider changing the italic font to something a bit less ornate.
#4, Pou	Option 1	Brighter cover, font is large and clear. Pleasing to the eye color
#4, Pou	Option 2	Dull cover, text is dark. It is not clear what the book is about
#5, Sle	Option 1	If your target audience is women, I recommend this. Maybe make the subtitle and the sticker bigger (remove the background plants/ flowers)
#5, Sle	Option 2	If you are targeting both gender, this one is nice. just make the subtitle bigger. also I suggest remove the author's title to the bottom. Readers scan covers from top to bottom, so you need to have the most important text, the title, on top
