INTRODUCTION

Why Dad Jokes?

Lunchbox Laughs, Dad-Style

It all started with a simple note in my oldest son Jace's lunchbox back in 1st grade. Just a few words: "You're awesome" or "I believe in you." A dad's way of cheering his son on from afar. But as time went on, those notes turned into doodles, and those doodles turned into jokes.

Then came the moment that changed everything: Jace came home one day and said, "Dad, can you put another joke in tomorrow? The lunch lady read mine to the whole table, and everyone laughed!" Suddenly, my silly little lunchbox habit became the headliner at Table 3. The pressure was on.

So began my daily hunt for kid-friendly, laugh-out-loud material (a surprisingly difficult task when you're catering to 1st graders—see Chapter 4: Poop Jokes for proof). The following year, my second child joined the same school, which meant double the sandwiches, double the snacks, and yes...double the jokes.

INTRODUCTION

And God help me if I ever forgot one—apparently lunch without a joke was a crisis worthy during family dinner that night.

It didn't take long before I started hearing things like, "Oh, you're Jace's dad—the joke guy!- Thanks now I have to write jokes for" Parents were writing their own lunchbox notes now, inspired by a tradition that had grown bigger than I ever imagined. Then, on Jace's last day of 5th grade, the school hit me right in the dad-feels: they presented us with a collection of over 200 jokes Jace had been sharing with his school administrator, Suzy, and staff. They'd been saving them, honoring him—and me—with a presentation that left this "tough" dad wiping away tears. Image below of the Suzy, Jace & a friend.

There are times you do things as it's expected, and there are times you do them as you feel you're doing something to connect with your children. But when your children gives back in a way you are not prepared for, it is truly heart felt with appreciation. Being proud of a child for who they are becoming, and for the actions they take; truly is the best gift ever. Love You Jaceman!

That moment showed me the true magic of a joke. Yes, it makes kids giggle, with an occasional snot bubble. Yes, it lightens the day. But more than that, it connects us—to our children, to their friends, to their teachers, and even to total strangers who simply heard a joke from their kid and needed a laugh.

LUNCH TIME LAUGHTER

Since then, the tradition has continued. Logan, my next child is in 5th grade now and has got six full years of jokes. Coen, my 3rd child will even give me suggestions and is in 2nd grade, and I still have 1 more, Charli, in preschool preparing herself for the tradition. What I've learned is that what started as a scrap of encouragement has become a family legacy.

Inside this book are over five years' worth of lunchbox jokes—actually a lot more if you want to do the math of a traditional school has 180 days. Now go back to Jace's gift! This was an amazing project as I remember the jokes I wrote, and have images included throughout of the actual Lunchbox Notes (don't judge my penmanship or lack of ability to draw). Even the jokes bring back memories of where the kids were that moment in their lives. To answer a few parents questions: Yes – I missed days, Yes – I wrote the same joke twice (and was called out for it), Yes – I just switched jokes of one kid with another. The main thing I can say is they got a joke. Because behind every joke is a dad doing his best to connect with his kids.

So here's my challenge to you:

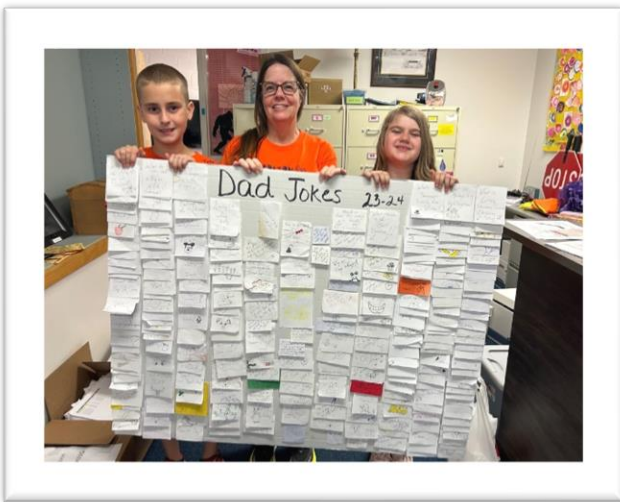

- Share these jokes.
- Watch how moods change, with others and yourself
- Notice how even the smallest laugh can bring people together.

INTRODUCTION

Enjoy the gift of Lunch Time Laughter—from my family to yours. And if you have a favorite joke, pass it along, as I'd love to hear it. Who knows? It might just end up in the next generation of lunchboxes.

SEND ME YOUR JOKES

A Quick Favor From One Dad-Joke Lover to Another

Hey there, friend—before you close this book and return to your regularly scheduled life of parenting, adulting, and pretending you didn't eat the last snack in the pantry... I have one small request.

If this book made you laugh, groan, eye-roll, snort, or whisper "I'm totally using that later," then you can help more readers discover it by leaving a quick review. Reviews are like "High 5's" for authors—free, magical fuel that convinces bookstores, algorithms, and curious humans that this book is worth a peek. Even a short sentence helps me get noticed by other dads, moms, grandparents, teachers, and anyone else who appreciates a well-crafted pun (or even a badly crafted one... which, let's be honest, is most of mine).

Your review really, Really, REALLY does way more than you think:

It helps other readers know what they're getting.

SEASONS OF SNICKERS

It boosts the book in search results and recommendations. When going against BIG production companies, this is HUGE

It tells me which jokes hit, which ones flopped, and which ones to blame on my kids.

It keeps passions like this alive.

And because I genuinely love hearing from real people who use these jokes out in the wild, I'd be thrilled if you sent me your thoughts—or even one of your favorite dad jokes—to mosonpublishing@gmail.com. I read every message. Yes, even the ones that make me question humanity. Especially those. and honestly You might get a shout out in Lunchtime Laughter 2.0!

Want Free Stuff?

As a thank-you for supporting this book, I've put together a clean, printable PDF with every joke drawings inside this book. You can cut them into little joke slips and:

Sneak one into your kid's lunchbox

Leave one on your coworker's keyboard

Slide one under your spouse's coffee mug

OR Tape one to the fridge to declare dominance

LUNCH TIME LAUGHTER

Just shoot me a quick message at mosonpublishing@gmail.com and I'll reply with the PDF—totally free. No strings attached. No spam. No marketing trapdoors. Just jokes. Lots of jokes.

From One Laugh-Dealer to Another

Thanks for reading my book – it means a lot to me and my kids who all have read these for years. Thanks for supporting this passion. Thanks for keeping dad humor alive in a world that sometimes takes itself too seriously. If you enjoyed this little adventure of puns and groan-inducing mischief, your review and email truly make a difference.

CONCLUSION

Get the Last Laugh

As we have this one last laugh, I just want to thank you. I understand a joke book probably shouldn't have a heartfelt message at the end, but I'm pretty unconventional. This joke book was a passionate project, like I had mentioned in the introduction as this has been many years of giving jokes to my kids. I encourage everyone that enjoyed this book to take a moment and share your favorite joke with someone just to see their reaction. Just with my kids, I have seen the impact on how just one joke can change the mood and spirits of many. I told you about my oldest in how he surprised me with over 1.5 years of jokes collected in the school office. This year the power of the Dad joke continues as my 5th grade daughter Logan shared with the students in her class. In doing so, they have now made it a part of their classroom wall, and every day the joke gets added (No pressure). The point is this.... We all need to laugh. Give it a lunchtime joke or shared amongst each other. That laughter is contagious and infectious, making everyone want a little more. Go be the spark that makes that first smile!

LUNCH TIME LAUGHTER

Thank you again for taking the time to read my family's joke book. Please share the review, wherever you got this book or you can send some love out on Amazon. Also if you want to get the Jokes & images from this book, send me a quick message to mosonpublishing@gmail.com. I'd love to hear from you.

Do you know how you're officially a Dad Joke pro? You made it all the way to the endwillingly!

Want to hear the last joke in this book?

– Too late. You just did!

Thank you again!

God Bless,

D.Moson
